

Additionally, if it is decided additional security is necessary, event promoters will be responsible for the costs. The average cost of security officials in the state is $40 per hour per 100 attendants where alcohol is served. It is unknown how many times this will have to be exercised.

Lastly, event promoters will now be required to utilize ensolite mats, which cost $3 to $6 per square foot and vary depending upon the thickness, and are slightly more expensive than the mats that are currently allowed. If promoters are not currently using ensolite mats, they will have an increase in costs, however the exact impact is indeterminable depending on the type of ensolite mat that is purchased and the quantity. Promoters have the ability to rent these mats out to other events in order to recoup the costs.

IV. ESTIMATED EFFECT ON COMPETITION AND EMPLOYMENT (Summary)

There may be an effect on employment as a result of the proposed rule change.

Physicians must now be approved by the commission which may affect current participants and/or increase employment opportunities for others. Additionally, if it is determined additional security personnel will be needed at an event; the promoter will be required to hire security, which will lead to additional employment opportunities.
